Withdrawal of Proposed Dark Rules Anti-Avoidance Provision

Summary

IIROC has withdrawn from consideration for approval by the applicable securities regulatory authorities a proposed amendment to UMIR 6.3 Exposure of Client Orders (Proposed Anti-Avoidance Provision)<sup>1</sup>. The Proposed Anti-Avoidance Provision would have limited a Participant's ability to execute a client order of 50 standard trading units or less on a foreign organized regulated market (FORM), unless the order was:

- entered on a market that displays order information (and the order is either displayed or executed on entry), or
- executed at a "better price"<sup>2</sup>.

In IIROC Notice 15-0277 Proposed Amendments Respecting Best Execution, we stated that we would withdraw the Proposed Anti-Avoidance Provision upon the implementation of the best execution amendments as we believe that the best execution amendments address many of the concerns that the Proposed Anti-Avoidance Provision was intended to address.<sup>3</sup>

The amendments respecting best execution will be implemented on January 2, 2018.

<sup>2</sup> A "better price" is defined in UMIR as price improvement of at least one trading increment except when the difference between the best ask price and the best bid price is a single trading increment, then price improvement of at least a half increment.

<sup>3</sup> IIROC Notice 15-0277 – Proposed Provisions Respecting Best Execution (December 10, 2015)

Specifically, the best execution amendments:

- clarify that sending client orders in listed securities in bulk to a foreign intermediary for execution outside of Canada, without considering other liquidity sources, including liquidity sources in Canada, is not in compliance with achieving best execution
- require the disclosure of best execution policies and procedures, which will help clients understand how, and under what circumstances, orders are being routed outside of Canada.

Please see IIROC Notice 17-0137 Amendments Respecting Best Execution for more information regarding the best execution amendments.

Withdrawal

IIROC has informed the CSA of its withdrawal of the Proposed Anti-Avoidance Provision.
