Re: Consultation on the Self-Regulatory Organization Framework

Citadel Securities Canada¹ appreciates the opportunity to provide feedback to the Canadian Securities Administrators ("CSA") on the consultation on Canada's framework for self-regulatory organizations ("SROs").²

We commend the CSA for soliciting feedback from market participants to ensure that the overarching regulatory framework continues to promote fair, efficient, and transparent markets in Canada. The CSA along with the provincial securities regulators has effectively utilized SROs in connection with carrying out market oversight responsibilities. In our experience, this approach has delivered many benefits, including (a) national standards with respect to regulation and supervision that universally apply across the various Canadian provinces and territories, (b) effective market surveillance, and (c) the appropriate inclusion of specialized industry expertise in the regulatory process. As such, we advocate for the continued appropriate separation between SROs and government regulatory bodies and do not recommend removing market surveillance responsibilities from IIROC or adopting overly prescriptive requirements regarding the independent governance structures of the SROs. Instead, we suggest that the CSA continue to enhance information sharing arrangements with the SROs and consider consolidating the two SROs into one self-regulatory body if it could result in additional efficiencies for the Canadian financial markets.
